In pursuance of the plan recommended by Julia Lathrop, head of the Children's Bureau, a national campaign is to be again undertaken by the women's organizations of the country this year. Owing to the frightful wastage of life in the great war there is a greater call than ever to conserve human lives especially the young. The National Conference of Social Work, to be held in Kansas City May 12-22, will stress this work in its sessions upon public health, child welfare, day nurseries and the family as the greatest contributing force to child conservation.

High School Benefits Town.

There are many reasons why every town should have a good high school. First of all a high school offers an opportunity to educate a large number of children who live in the town. These are thus trained for better citizenship and in after life will no doubt be the leaders of the community. Those who are not destined to be leaders will be able to fill positions which the less fortunate cannot fill because of a lack of proper training.

Again the high school within the town saves parents the expense of sending their children elsewhere, which necessitates large and unnecessary expenses and enables only a comparatively few children to get an education of the high school kind. How many high school children in this town have parents who could afford to send them away to school? I dare to say not over five or six could afford it. As it is 55 are benefited by the high school.

If it were possible for all of these 55 to attend elsewhere, would it pay to send them away from parental care to a strange place? Would it pay to have them spend their money elsewhere instead of in the home town? Or would it pay for us to allow many of our best citizens to move away in order that their children may be allowed to get an education and yet be under parental care?

If you have children to educate you cannot afford to do without a high school. If you have no children you cannot afford to do without a high school for the sake of your neighbors' children. If you have a business in town the high school will help the town and thus help you.

The last step in the passage of the daylight saving bill was taken Saturday, March 16th, when the senate, without objection, concurred in the house amendment. The bill was signed by the President Tuesday.

Clocks will be moved forward one hour on March 31 and will be moved back again on October 27, under the provisions of the bill.

Inasmuch as commercial and labor organizations the country over have petitioned for the bill, congress expects a general agreement with the law everywhere. Five zones of time are to be fixed by order of the Interstate Commerce Commission. But it is directed in the bill to have "due regard" for the present railroad classifications. The unofficial understanding is that no important change is to be made in present arrangements. There will be Eastern, Central, Mountain, Pacific and Alaskan time.

The father of the daylight saving movement was an Englishman, William Willett, who in 1907 published a booklet on "The Waste of Daylight." In 1908 a daylight saving bill was introduced in the house of commons, but failed of passage because it was said to have been needless, deceptive and confusing.

Nova Scotia introduced the new system on this side of the ocean. Virtually no confusion resulted. The same innovation was put in operation in the spring of 1917, but at a much earlier date. In France the change was made on March 24.

In England where the change was avowed a war measure and not designed to outlast the war, a prime consideration was the conserving of the coal supply for naval and military uses. It is estimated the English are saving $12,000,000 on gas and electric light bills in a single season. New York City, by the system, could save annually about $1,000,000 on these items.

In 1917, Australia and Iceland also adopted daylight saving.

The Services of the 40 Hours Devotion which were held on Sunday, Monday and Tuesday, were exceedingly well attended, favored by favorable weather. The sermons were delivered by Rev. Joseph Hoeltling, an orator of no small ability. In all 2,450 Holy Communion were administered. The local clergy were assisted by Revs. Jos. Stevens, Edw. Amsinger, Jos. Hoeltling and Chas. Schmall of St. Louis; George Hildner of Clearville; James Heber of Perryville; Chas. Ennig of Belgique; Jos. Newman of St. Mary's; Louis Broedelmann of River aux Vases; Wm. Kotte of Weingarten; E. Heimerscheid of Zell; F. X. Weing of Lawrenceville; H. Hassel of Bloomsdale and Jos. Fitzkam of Benton. The closing exercises on Tuesday evening, were very impressive, and were attended by people from far and near taxing the large and spacious church to its utmost capacity.
